11 students earn distinguished or exceptional honors in 4th Annual BCPS Composition Project

Students composed music related to the theme “The World and You”

Towson, MD – Baltimore County Public Schools students – from elementary to high school – took the theme “The World and You” and created imaginative, accomplished, and stirring pieces of music to enter into the 4th Annual BCPS Composition Project. The BCPS Office of Music and Dance Education has announced that entries submitted by 11 students have earned Distinguished Honors and Exceptional Honors. Another 11 students earned Honorable Mentions for their compositions.

This year’s theme, “The World and You,” drew from the personal inspirations and experiences of the student composers.

“Congratulations to all students who composed and submitted their own original work this year,” said Shane Jensen, BCPS music specialist. “Every student who submitted work should be extremely proud and will receive feedback from the project adjudicators. Music teachers -- thank you for your dedication in guiding students through the composition process. We appreciate all you have done!”
